

HOW SOLO STOVE SAFELY RETURNED TO THE OFFICE

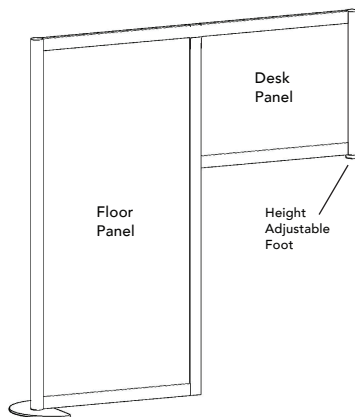

Solo Stove, a premier manufacturer of portable camp stoves and fire pits, was faced with a problem. Their state lockdown was lifting but their office was not prepared for the return of their employees.

Like most modern businesses, Solo Stove's headquarters was designed with an open office layout. While sleek and trendy, this layout did not offer enough division between employees. And because the safety and peace of mind of their employees was a priority, Solo Stove called Loftwall.

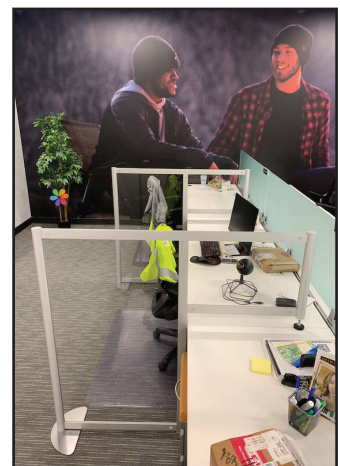

Solo Stove's requests were simple. They wanted a retrofit privacy solution for their bench seating that wouldn't mar the surface of their workstations, could be cleaned with healthcare-grade cleaners, wouldn't impede sightlines and could be delivered quickly.

Fortunately, they were describing a product we had already dreamed up.

Meet Hitch. Designed to fit any workstation, Hitch is offered with dozens of panel options to easily blend into any space.

Days after reaching out, Solo Stove employees returned to work safely and with peace of mind.

LOFTWALL