

Making Lemonade

how to make working from home not feel like homework

Presented by

LOFTWALL

SUMMARY

The world is moving to remote work, and the undeniable statistics show that people are ill-prepared to make this shift and stay as productive as they were in an office. This course dives into the trends, employer fears, helpful boundaries, and design implications on working from home.

Course attendees will leave with actionable plans to make lemonade out of any situation they are placed in.

CERTIFICATIONS

AIA and IDCEC
(ASID, IIDA, GBCI, EDAC)
Health, Safety and Welfare (HSW)
60 minutes (1.0 credit)

Presented by

LOFTWALL

LEARNING OBJECTIVES

Understanding why the world is marching towards more remote employees and future projections

Discussing what remote employees can do to make the most of remote work (and understanding their employers' perspective)

Understanding how the design of your space can influence the pros and cons of your working from home experience - and the healthy balance that comes with WFH

Creating actionable steps for your WFH experience; making a mentally and physically healthy action-plan

